

STAINLESS STEEL - A refreshing use of a modern image on a long established material.

SCREEN PRINT - The choice of colour and lettering can create effects more often associated with expensive materials and methods.

VITREOUS ENAMEL - The obvious choice for heritage nameplates - bright, long lasting and low maintenance.

Here are some factors to think about when choosing your commemorative plaques:

- When choosing a commemorative plaque first work out what text you want to include. The shape of the plaque can depend on the length of the text line. For example, an oval shaped plaque will only accommodate long text lines in the middle of the sign, where as rectangular or square plaques are suited to where there are long text lines at the top or bottom.
- The choice of material is also equally important. Cast signs or signs mounted on a wooden back plate are ideal as presentation plaques. Stainless steel gives a modern feel while polished brass is often the preferred choice for professional services nameplates.

STATELY - The use of a time-honoured natural stone such as slate creates a distinguished looking durable sign.

Our staff say...

"The graphics studio has the challenge of turning customers artwork into the right format for the production team to use, taking into account the huge range of production techniques and materials we offer. I love seeing the finished product knowing how much care and time goes into each design."
